Excerpt: . . . impediment came to his speech, which necessitated his leaving school, and abstaining for a time from study. Shortly after this, the store-rooms of the Kitchen Garden department at Kew were transferred to the Botanic Garden, and it was suggested that they might be converted into a seed room and museum. As a beginning, and for amusement, Mr. Alexander Smith conveyed specimens of cones, fruit, capsules, woods, etc. , which his father had from time to time collected, to this building, placing them on some of the fruit-shelves. Sir William Hooker also sent all he had at his house, and this was the beginning of the Kew Museum. In 1847 the centre room of the old building was fitted up. By this time specimens were becoming numerous, and Mr. Alexander Smith continued to arrange them. In June, 1847, he became a paid servant at the rate...
