Jesus compared it to wind in John 3:8. Just like wind, we can't see faith. We can only see the effects of faith. Some time ago, I had an extremely difficult year. Trials came in waves. Each new wave made the last one seem like child's play. For my own benefit, I decided to do a personal study on the book of James. James is famous for his call to believers to consider it pure joy whenever you face trials of many kinds (James 1:2). But I wanted more from James. I wanted him to tell me how. I settled in to his epistle for as long as it would take. When I began my study of James, I didn't know how well he and I would get along. James has a reputation of being all about suffering well, controlling tongues and practical Christian living. Practicality in Christian circles has come to mean that it's time to get out pens and paper and write down a list of what we are supposed to do. But I'm not so good with rules. Guilt doesn't motivate me for long. I don't suffer well, and my tongue gets me into trouble all the time. Truthfully, I came into this epistle expecting a daily hand-slap and an exhortation to DO better. My past experiences with James have come in the form of lessons from other people interpreting the book for me. I recall a lesson here on taming tongues, and a lesson there on the importance of caring for widows and orphans. Whenever you break up a book of the Bible into pieces,...
