Because I happen to be a Senator of the United State I do not respond with the authority of the Senate. But If the President had done what other Presidents had done, and had laid the draft before the Senate, he would have had our amendments. Jackson, the old Indian fighter, arbitrary and Imperious, asked the advice of the Senate In international affairs. Grant, victor In the greatest civil war. did the greatest service to peace when he advised with the Senate, secured the Geneva convention and saved us from war with Great Britain. Washington and Lincoln consulted the Senate, and no man is too great to walk in the footsteps of Washington and Lincoln. If the President had submitted this covenant to us he would have had his amendments now. The battle would have been more than half won by the mere act of submitting lr to us. Not only then but now the Peace Conference in Paris does not know what we want. Let him call the Senate together and the amendments will he drafted and sent t- Paris. Thus ended the most memorable debate of the decade. It has already done much to clear the atmosphere and to concentrate public thought on the real points at issue. Its first fruit was the agreement on the part of Mr. Wilson in Paris, to amend the Covenant; but how far those amendments will go...
